

International PhD Program
“Law & Social Change: The Challenges of Transnational Regulation”

Four Seminars on Digital Policies Professor Stéphane Grumbach Senior scientist at INRIA

(Institut national de recherche en sciences et technologies du numérique – ENS Lyon)

Thursday, November 4, 2021 from 12.00 to 14.00 (CET)

Extraterritorial mediations

The activity of intermediation on two- or multi-sided markets is increasingly ensured by platforms that have no implication in the territory where the exchanges take place. They operate for part beyond the control of local governance. What disruption for the local normative activity.

Thursday, November 11, 2021 from 12.00 to 14.00 (CET)

Digital & complexity

Information technology co-evolve with the complexity of societies. Where is the complexity, and how can it be tackled? Planetary boundaries are a unique challenge for human societies.

Thursday, November 18, 2021 from 12.00 to 14.00 (CET)

Power in a digital era

Relationships between governments and platforms. Nations with or without platforms. Governments as platforms. Control society. Covid monitoring. Is surveillance our future?

Thursday, November 25, 2021 from 12.00 to 14.00 (CET)

Geopolitics of the digital

A rivalry between two superpowers, US and China, for the control of the world, through a multidimensional arsenal: techno, platforms, legal, etc. Where does Europe stand and why?

All Seminars will be held in blended form: in presence in Room 278 of the Law Department of Roma Tre University (via Ostiense 159 – Rome), and on Teams.

Those wishing to follow the Seminars online are kindly requested to send a mail to stefano.passera@uniroma3.it in order to receive the link.

The Seminars are part of the activities carried out in the framework of the Research Project “Governance of/through big data” (PRIN 2017)
