Il dott. Zohar Lederman del Centre for Medical Ethics and Law, The University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong terrà un seminario (in inglese) dal titolo:

The Ethical Challenges of Loneliness

This talk is going to examine the ethics or bioethics of loneliness. Even before Covid loneliness was known to be a major public health concern. During and post-Covid it had worsened. The ethics of loneliness, however, has been neglected. Indeed, one of the reasons public health actors have largely failed to prevent and mitigate loneliness is because they understood and defined loneliness simplistically. In fact, loneliness exists in different forms, and each form may require different interventions for mitigation.

L'invito è aperto a tutte le persone interessate.
